The Izinga Transportation Hub opens at Mall of Africa

Attacq Limited has officially unveiled the Izinga Transportation Hub at Mall of Africa. This new integrated public transport facility is expected to improve the daily commuting experience for thousands of passengers travelling to and from Waterfall City, while supporting more organised and efficient transport operations.

Designed to support everyday movement with greater ease, the hub brings together taxi and on-demand delivery services, such as Checkers Sixty60, Pick n Pay ASAP, Uber Eats etc in one seamless, thoughtfully planned space. It features clear wayfinding, structured traffic flow, passenger seating, ablution facilities and dedicated driver areas equipped with cellphone charging stations. The result is a modern facility that responds to the realities of urban mobility with a safe space defined by efficiency and comfort. Every element has been carefully considered to improve flow, accessibility, and the overall daily transit.

Hendrick Nomazele, Waterfall City Operations Manager at Attacq Limited, said the development reflects Attacq's commitment to building inclusive and accessible precincts with infrastructure that supports the people who live, work and visit these spaces every day. "The Izinga Transportation Hub is an important step in improving accessibility and enhancing the commuter experience at Mall of Africa, while supporting safer and more organised mobility within the broader Waterfall City area."

"The creation of this hub underscores a shared commitment between Attacq, Waterfall City, transport stakeholders and public authorities to create a more organised, reliable and dignified commuting environment. It represents what can be achieved when we work together with a shared goal. Our aim is to provide a safe, clean and well-managed facility that improves the daily commuting experience for passengers while supporting the operators who serve this precinct," Nomazele concluded.

Strategically located at Mall of Africa, the Izinga Transportation Hub offers a centralised node for public transport activity within Waterfall City.

Accessible to vehicles from Simlak Drive, pedestrians can access the hub from inside the mall by taking the escalators in front of Checkers down to F2. Once on F2, walk straight ahead to the Izinga Transport Hub. Clear directional signage is in place to guide you along the way. Enjoy the journey.

MALL OF AFRICA TURNS 10

Mall of Africa recently celebrated its 10 year milestone birthday with a large-scale installation, shopping specials, memory-making moments and live entertainment.

Mall of Africa celebrated an incredible decade of retail, culture and community in April. Cherished as one of South Africa's most beloved shopping destinations, the centre stands tall as a defining landmark in the country's retail landscape, where global ambition meets unmistakable African energy.

Over the past 10 years, Mall of Africa has grown into one of the most influential retail destinations, shaping how South Africans shop, gather and spend their time. Its sheer scale and benchmark-setting mix of brands connect Africa to the world and the world to Africa. Set within Waterfall City, the mall has been recognised on both local and global stages, with accolades that reflect its impact on retail, design and shopper experience.

From being named the Coolest Mall in South Africa for eight consecutive years to receiving international honours at leading industry awards, these achievements reflect how the centre continues to set the pace and hold its own among the world's leading retail destinations.

A multi-faceted celebration

To commemorate the occasion, Mall of Africa unveiled a multi-layered campaign themed A Decade of Culture, designed to bring shoppers closer to the experiences, brands and moments that have shaped its remarkable journey.

The celebration's centrepiece was a striking thread-based installation, launched in the Crystal Court on 24 April and on display until 3 May. Symbolising the role that Mall of Africa plays in shaping contemporary culture, stores across the mall each added their own coloured threads, representing fashion, food and entertainment, gradually bringing this unique large-scale artwork to life.

PAST. PRESENT. «FUTURE.» PRE-2012 Before the precinct took shape, there was a dream of potential and hope. From open land (once a family farm) to a thriving hub – rooted in connection, possibility, and bold ambition – this is how Waterfall City came to be.	A LEGACY IN «MOTION» PRE-2012 The dynamic dream turned into a bold vision – a fully integrated urban node where retail, commerce, and community merged, anchored by Mall of Africa as its flagship retail destination.	INSPIRED BY «AFRICA» OCTOBER 2012 On 28 October 2012, ground broke, and the dream began to take shape. What was once open land transformed into the foundation of one of Africa's most ambitious retail destinations.	ROOTED IN «AFRICA» 2013 – 2015 Development accelerated fast, and the vision came into focus – a bold new destination rising, elevating the Johannesburg retail and lifestyle landscape.	WEAVING AFRICA'S «STORIES» 2015 – EARLY 2016 Completion neared. Anticipation for a world-class destination, where global brands meet African identity, reached its peak before opening.

Shoppers were invited to take part in the creation of this piece too, adding their own threads and leaving a personal mark on the living installation that celebrated connection, creativity and community. The artwork stood as a visual expression of the many stories that have come together in Mall of Africa over the past decade.

An interactive timeline guided shoppers through the mall's journey, offering a moment to reflect on the special role that Mall of Africa plays in their lives. During the mall's birthday week, shoppers were able to engage with the installation and enter a competition via QR code, with the chance to win R10,000.

As Mall of Africa celebrated a decade of growth and connection, the birthday campaign reflected its strategic focus on creating meaningful, memorable experiences.

"Reaching our first decade milestone is a really special moment for us," says Yasmeen Lorgat, General Manager of Mall of Africa. "This celebration was not only about celebrating Mall of Africa as a destination, but also celebrating the people who have shaped it along the way."

Moments of celebration and retail excitement

Adding to the energy was the 10 Days of WOW Deals retail drive, where shoppers took advantage of exclusive offers from participating stores, with daily deals revealed on the mall's social media platforms.

The celebration built up to a special birthday event held on Tuesday, 28 April, where the centre came alive with entertainment from Mi Casa, alongside giveaways and curated experiences for shoppers. Five lucky shoppers who engaged with the mall's social media platforms won a chance to meet the group in person. And, the first 500 people who arrived at the mall received goody bags, adding a special touch to the milestone moment.

The birthday celebration also saw the launch of exclusive, limited-edition Mall of Africa merchandise that is currently available to purchase from the Concierge Desk, giving shoppers the opportunity to take a piece of the celebration home.

For regular updates on Mall of Africa, its stores and activations, follow the mall on social media at <https://www.instagram.com/themallofafrica/> or visit the mall's website: <https://mallofafrica.co.za/>.

LEVELLING UP

Curro Waterfall hosts a record-breaking weekend of esports excellence

At the end of March, the typical quiet and slow start of the school holidays was replaced by the rapid-fire clicking of computer keyboards and the high stakes roar of a digital arena. Curro Waterfall played host to the Curro Clash Gauteng LAN for the second year running – a weekend defined by friendly rivalry, school pride, and a level of gaming excellence that proves esports is no longer just a hobby – it's a premier school sport.

Since its inception, the event has seen exponential growth. In 2023, the Gauteng regional started with just eight schools and 95 players. Fast forward to 2026, and the event has nearly tripled in size, hosting 267 players in what has become the largest regional event to date.

More than just a game

Curro Holdings' pioneering esports initiative is a strategic move designed to engage a digitally native generation. According to Magdeleen de Kock, Curro Esports Project Manager, the skyrocketing demand underscores the need for structured, competitive gaming at school level.

"Curro Clash is more than just a tournament," De Kock emphasises. "It's a space where learners grow in confidence, make friends, and compete with integrity. We have been growing our esports programme for the last 5 years, and to be asked to host again, speaks to how far our esports, and our players, have come."

While "quick fingers" are a part of the equation, success in the arena requires deep game knowledge, keyboard and mouse dexterity, and – most importantly – intense communication and teamwork. This professional environment is bolstered by the African Cyber Gaming League (ACGL) and seasoned "shoutcasters" (esports commentators) who provide live play-by-play analysis, lending the event the same prestige as a traditional sports derby.

The challenge

Players are placed in different pools where there are round robin playouts. Once all these matches have been played, teams are placed in either a top bracket or a lower bracket. After these two brackets have been set, the semi-finals and finals begin. The top bracket teams compete for podium placements. If a team makes the podium, they automatically qualify for the National LAN against inter-provincial teams.

The atmosphere: Digital meets traditional

For those with reservations about the intensity of gaming, one walk through the hall during a final would change your mind. The atmosphere is every bit as loud and intense as a rugby or netball derby. With 90% of the titles being Player-vs-Player (PvP), the suspense is palpable. As matches are streamed onto giant screens, the cheers from parents, coaches, and fellow learners rival any stadium crowd.

Inclusivity and future careers

One of the most significant highlights of the Curro Esports programme is its inclusivity. Coaches note that esports provide a unique platform for neurodivergent learners and can even act as a regulation tool for hyperactive students. It levels the playing field, allowing students to shine in ways they might not in traditional sports. Amanda Roosendaal, a Subject Head and key coordinator of Curro Clash at Curro Waterfall says, "For parents who might be skeptical about gaming at school, I can truly say that I have seen the difference that esports has made. Most of the players who have been involved in esports for more than three years are also in leadership roles at school. Learners develop skills in teamwork, communication, and how to work through problems, challenges and conflict."

Furthermore, Curro sees this as a clear pathway to professional careers. The initiative is introducing shoutcasting this year to develop local talent in broadcasting – a field with fewer than 10 professionals currently in South Africa. From game development to team management, the skills learned here are preparing students for the 21st-century job market.

2026 Winners' Circle

The competition at this year's Curro Clash Gauteng LAN was fierce across school-friendly titles like Minecraft, Brawlhalla, Rocket League, Overwatch and Valorant. Curro Waterfall stood tall as a dominant force, particularly in the Minecraft categories. And a huge congrats to Kai Makins from Curro Waterfall who took the top podium spot in the High School Brawlhalla games. All teams that made the podium have qualified for the National LAN in Term 3.

A growing legacy

The success of the event was made possible through the support of Waterfall City Management Company, who sponsored the team shirts and a dedicated player chill area, and Spec-Savers, who provided essential eye screenings for the competitors.

Exciting times lie ahead, as Curro Waterfall is planning a new dedicated esports arena featuring pro-gaming chairs and PCs for next year's Clash.

The overall winners for each title were:

Minecraft Build Battles High School: Curro Waterfall
Minecraft PVP Primary School: Curro Waterfall

Overwatch: Curro Serengeti
Valorant: Curro Krugersdorp

SPECIALISED CARE

A triumph over tragedy

"Hannah-Grace was in such a bad way, we hardly dared to hope for the kind of recovery she has made."

The medical care in the immediate aftermath of a head injury, combined with rehabilitation therapies in the weeks that follow, can make all the difference in the life of the survivor – particularly when a child's future is at stake.

"We never thought something like this could happen. The accident came without warning. Another vehicle hit us at high speed. We were far from home, as we had been visiting friends in Mpumalanga," recalls Megan Hefer, of Fochville, Gauteng.

Three-and-a-half-year-old Hannah-Grace Hefer's life hung in the balance following a tragic car accident in the first week of 2026 that cut short the life of her devoted father and left her mother, Megan, with an injured arm and eye.

"At the scene of the accident, Hannah-Grace's eyes were fixed and unfocused: I knew that was a bad sign," Megan recalls.

"Hannah-Grace was in such a bad way, we hardly dared to hope for the kind of recovery she has made," recalls Dr Palesa Monyake, paediatric intensivist at Netcare Waterfall City Hospital's specialised paediatric intensive care unit.

Yet, just over two months after the accident, the little girl described as a 'go-getter', is returning to her lively, active self and surpassing everyone's expectations for a recovery after brain injury.

Hannah-Grace, her mother and aunt recently visited Dr Palesa Monyake and the multidisciplinary paediatric intensive care unit (PICU) team at Netcare Waterfall City Hospital.

"She was airlifted from Ermelo in a critical condition with severe head injuries, and when she arrived, Hannah-Grace kept having seizures and could not even breathe on her own."

"As a mother myself, I knew how difficult it must be for Mrs Hefer to be separated from her injured child without knowing who was looking after her. The next morning, I visited her in the hospital to introduce myself and promise her we would take care of Hannah-Grace, just as if she were our own child," Dr Monyake says.

After several days, Hannah-Grace's condition slowly began to improve under the diligent care of doctors and paediatric intensive care unit nurses, whom Megan describes as "angels doing God's work".

"On 7 January, they extubated Hannah-Grace and I had to leave her in the hospital to identify my husband's body. On the same day, I received two blessings. Firstly, Hannah-Grace woke up for the first time since the accident, and secondly, my sister safely delivered a healthy baby. There were so many emotions, but for me, it was the Lord's way of supporting me through this terrible time."

Hannah-Grace learnt to walk again with the support of a multidisciplinary team, including physiotherapist Charne Cox.

At last, Hannah-Grace could breathe on her own, but the extent of the neurological effects remained unclear. Scans revealed areas of bleeding in Hannah-Grace's brain, which can indicate damage to areas of the brain responsible for movement, language and other crucial functions.

"Her eyes were only staring to the right, but we didn't know if she could see or hear. She didn't talk, and she didn't show any signs that she recognised me," her mother remembers.

Megan, her mother, sister, Dr Monyake and the PICU nurses prayed for Hannah-Grace's recovery. "As time went on, she started speaking a few words. One day, she said, 'Ek is Hannah Grace,' and she seemed to know herself for the first time. I cried out, 'My baby is coming back!'"

Dr Monyake describes Hannah-Grace's mother as "a pillar of strength," whose love, support, and faith at her daughter's bedside were invaluable.

With Hannah-Grace medically stable at last, she was ready for the intensive therapies that would aid her recovery at Netcare Rehabilitation Hospital.

Dr Anrie Carstens, a general practitioner with a special interest in physical and rehabilitation medicine, said that when Hannah-Grace arrived, the most prominent feature of her injury was pronounced weakness on the left side of her body, in keeping with a stroke in the basal ganglia of the brain.

"Hannah-Grace's brain had to relearn how to recognise the left side of her body so she could learn to walk again. When she came in, her expressive and receptive language skills were also delayed. Her initial assessment anticipated she would need eight weeks of intensive therapy at Netcare Rehabilitation Hospital, but she was so eager to get going with her therapy sessions and progressed so quickly that we were amazed when she needed less than half this time."

According to Dr Carstens, brain injuries in children often have a greater potential to heal and regain lost functionality, provided there is prompt and appropriate emergency care, as well as the required specialised care after the injury, followed by neurologically informed intensive multidisciplinary therapy.

"The neuroplasticity of children's brains means they often have the most to gain from rehabilitative therapies as soon as possible after injury. In Hannah-Grace's case, although she was withdrawn at first, she grew in confidence and showed progress in important functional areas – engaging in symbolic play, initiating activities and improving her social skills. Most poignantly, she showed tender attentiveness and empathy for one of the children she befriended in the ward," Dr Carstens says.

Given the trauma of the accident and the loss of her father, psychological support and play therapy were provided as part of the multidisciplinary care Hannah-Grace received at the hospital.

Physiotherapist Charne Cox helped Hannah-Grace develop her balance, coordination and mobility during her rehabilitation admission. "At first she couldn't crawl or walk, but she tried so hard from the beginning that we could see she was going to do well. Every week, we realised she was making such rapid progress that she would not stay as long as we expected," Cox says.

Making therapy fun and engaging is crucial for capturing children's attention, and activities such as baking, making necklaces and movement games on a big screen TV featuring Hannah-Grace's favourite cartoon characters were just some of the tools used in her therapy.

"Hannah Grace's mom was a true champion, supporting her daughter every step of the way and helping to keep her attention focused on the therapy while also maintaining the boundaries of parenthood that can often be hard to maintain when a child has suffered a brain injury. She also asked the right questions to prepare for Hannah-Grace's return to the home environment," Cox says.

Dr Carstens says that after just three weeks at Netcare Rehabilitation Hospital, Hannah-Grace's functional testing score rose dramatically. "She arrived with a score of 35 – far below the average of 91 for her age – but improved to 85. With additional fine-tuning and continued outpatient therapy, we fully expect Hannah-Grace to continue improving, just as she thrived during her time with us."

Megan says that Hannah-Grace is making great strides – literally. Her walking is almost back to normal, she's talking in both English and Afrikaans, and she's spending time with Buddy, the Yorkshire terrier she and her late husband bought for their daughter for Christmas just before the accident.

"She is doing so well, and she is so eager to play and run around that I have my hands full trying to keep her from being a little gymnast. The doctors advised that another bump to the head could be serious for Hannah-Grace, so I have to remind her to be careful when she is playing.

"It was God's grace that restored her to us, and now I fully realise the significance of why we named her Hannah-Grace. Every nurse, every doctor and therapist, every person who had a role in the miracle of her recovery and showed us such care and kept us in your prayers throughout, we are so grateful for each one of you," Megan concludes.

Mariska Comins

“A DREAM written down with a date becomes a GOAL. A goal broken down into steps becomes a PLAN. A plan backed by ACTION becomes REALITY.”

The concept of delayed gratification – resisting an immediate reward or temptation to receive a bigger or better reward later – is not a new one. However, in a world of on-demand convenience, algorithm-driven marketing, relentless social pressure and easy access to short-term credit, it is harder than ever to be disciplined.

Living in a world that prioritises instant rewards

We live in a society motivated by solving short-term wants, often without considering the long-term financial trade-offs. For many, the temptation to spend now can overshadow the quiet power of consistent, incremental investing – a practice that takes discipline.

While this challenge affects everyone, the pressures influencing how we choose to spend or save are particularly complex. In addition, they are often shaped by societal expectations and deeply ingrained cultural norms. As a result, people spend a substantial portion of disposable income on trends to fit into the perceived expectation of maintaining a certain appearance. The question is, what if just a fraction of that spend was redirected towards your future self instead?

Let’s talk numbers

Let’s say you cut back R500 per month on non-essential spending and invest that amount instead. If we assume the annual cost increases on those products amount to 6% Consumer Price Index (CPI), and assume the annual growth rate on these funds you invest is 10%, then the potential outcome over time could be as follows:

Term	Amount
After 5 years	R40,107
After 10 years	R115,782
After 15 years	R251,798

These calculations don't factor in the use of investing funds in tax-efficient products, which could result in even greater savings.

This simple shift illustrates the power of delayed gratification and compounding, which allows your money to generate returns on both your contributions and the growth they achieve over time.

The principle of delayed gratification touches several key elements of sound financial planning:

Time value of money

A rand today is worth a lot more than a rand tomorrow, because of its earning potential. The earlier you start, the more your money works for you through compounding growth.

Inflation adjustment

Many investors underestimate the erosive impact of inflation. By increasing your contributions annually in line with inflation, your investment maintains its real purchasing power over time.

Behavioural finance

Remaining disciplined with your finances is not always easy. However, small but sustainable behavioural shifts often have a greater impact on financial outcomes than major, inconsistent actions. The discipline to consistently save and invest even modest amounts compounds into meaningful wealth over time.

Goal-based planning

Redirecting spending into a structured investment plan aligns financial behaviour with long-term goals, whether it's financial independence at retirement, or generational wealth creation. So change the narrative – delaying gratification is not about deprivation. It's about making intentional choices that support your future financial security.

"A DREAM written down with a date becomes a GOAL. A goal broken down into steps becomes a PLAN. A plan backed by ACTION becomes REALITY."

Forging a different path

It is important to take a step back and really understand what you are spending your hard-earned money on. This gives you a better view of how your spending decisions will serve you – now as well as in the future.

Imagine the peace of mind that will come from knowing you've built an investment portfolio while others have been chasing fleeting trends. It's the difference between temporary satisfaction and long-term financial freedom. Your future self will thank you.

"LEARNING HERE ISN'T
JUST ABOUT WHAT
YOU KNOW. IT'S ABOUT WHO YOU BECOME."

LEARNING WITHOUT LIMITS

At the American International School of Johannesburg (AISJ), academic excellence is just the beginning. For over 40 years, we have empowered students to explore, create, and grow in a learning environment tailored to their needs.

With campuses in both Pretoria & Johannesburg, the school serves expatriate and local families alike, combining world-class academic standards with a commitment to the holistic development of the child. Students are not just taught; they are known. Our students are given the freedom to pursue their passions, explore new interests, and shape their own educational journey.

LEARNING ISN'T LINEAR

AISJ's instruction is designed to adapt - helping students understand ideas, not just facts. Students ask questions, make connections across subjects, and apply their knowledge in meaningful ways, preparing them for life beyond the classroom. We emphasise a deeper understanding, critical thinking, and real-world problem-solving.

Academic rigour is built on decades of experience, having offered the International Baccalaureate Diploma Programme (IBDP) for over 30 years and now expanding excellence to the Elementary School with candidacy for the International Baccalaureate Primary Years Programme (IB PYP). These globally recognised programmes provide students with the critical thinking, inquiry skills, and conceptual understanding necessary to succeed in top universities and beyond.

Early Learning starts at 3! AISJ now offers a Pre-K 3 programme, providing three-year-olds with a nurturing, inquiry-based introduction to school that fosters curiosity, confidence, and a love of learning from the very beginning.

DESIGNED FOR DIFFERENCE

One of AISJ's most distinctive features is its focus on ensuring that every student receives the education they need in the way that best suits them. By embracing neurodiversity, we create learning experiences that adapt to a wide range of strengths, needs, and ways of thinking.

Every child learns differently, and those differences are understood, valued, and supported. Learning environments and pathways are thoughtfully designed to meet students where they are, honouring diverse learning styles and interests.

By adjusting instruction, support, and opportunities as students grow, we ensure that each learner is appropriately challenged, intentionally supported, and empowered to build confidence, independence, and success.

DISCOVER HOW A STRONG START LEADS TO A BRIGHT FUTURE!

THE FOUR PILLARS OF LEARNING

AISJ's balanced education is built on four pillars:

- Academics - Concept-driven, inquiry-based learning prepares students for top universities worldwide
- Arts - Opportunities in visual arts, music, and performance starting from 3 years old
- Athletics - Participating in local and international sports tournaments, arts festivals, and conferences
- Service - Students engage meaningfully with local and global communities, developing empathy, leadership, and a sense of responsibility

Together, these pillars ensure students develop academically, creatively, physically, socially, and as globally minded individuals ready to contribute positively to the world around them.

"Our learners are prepared not just for school, but for the world beyond it."

A BOARDING EXPERIENCE THAT FEELS LIKE HOME

For students in Grades 8-12, AISJ's luxury boarding programme offers a supportive, independent environment where learners grow academically, socially, and personally. Boarding combines rigorous academics, personalised pathways, and a nurturing community, providing continuity and stability for families, especially those who are internationally mobile.

Students live and learn alongside peers from diverse backgrounds, forming friendships and skills that last a lifetime. Here, they develop independence, resilience, and a sense of belonging - preparing them for university, careers, and life beyond school.

"At AISJ, learning has no limits, and neither do our students."

WHY AISJ STANDS OUT

AISJ provides academic excellence, a global perspective, and a deep commitment to the whole child. Every student is recognised as an individual, with learning designed to meet their strengths, interests, and ways of thinking.

From the first steps in early childhood through graduation, we offer continuity, care, and community at every stage of the journey. Students explore their passions, build confidence and resilience, and grow as curious, capable, and independent learners.

Our goal is to shape learners who are not only academically prepared but also confident, adaptable, and ready to engage with the world. Students leave AISJ equipped - not just for the next grade, but for life beyond school, wherever their journey takes them.

Our students graduate ready for universities and opportunities around the globe. Our alumni have gone on to attend top institutions in the US, UK, South Africa and beyond, combining academic excellence with the skills and confidence to thrive anywhere in the world.

THE GARAGE WOODMEAD

Setting the standard in car care

In one of the most vibrant commercial districts in the economic hub of Gauteng, a new contender has emerged to redefine the standard of vehicle maintenance. The Garage Woodmead has officially opened its doors, stepping into the market not merely as a workshop, but as a premium automotive service provider that treats vehicle care as a genuine craft.

This commitment to excellence is matched by a strategic location that sits at the centre of the region's growth. Situated in the Woodmead area of Waterfall City, the facility serves as a vital link between the bustling corporate sector and local residential communities. Its proximity to major transit routes, including the M1 and N1, ensures that specialised automotive care is now an effortless detour for the busy professional and the local homeowner alike.

Inside the facility, the offering is as comprehensive as it is precise. The Garage Woodmead provides bespoke services tailored to every stage of a vehicle's life, from meticulous scheduled maintenance and advanced diagnostics to complex mechanical repairs. Beyond the daily drive, they further distinguish themselves through high-end restoration projects and customised fleet solutions designed to keep local businesses moving.

value asset, reflecting a deep-seated respect for automotive engineering. As a representative of the team explains, their experts understand the intricate nuances of both modern luxury vehicles and heritage restorations, all while operating within a sophisticated environment that mirrors the quality of the work performed.

Whether you are a local resident seeking a trustworthy partner for your personal vehicle or a business requiring a higher standard of fleet care, The Garage Woodmead invites you to experience an approach where premium service is a matter of pride, not just a promise.

WHY PROPER LANDSCAPE DESIGN IS A FORM OF PROPERTY PROTECTION

Most homeowners discover the true cost of a garden only after construction begins. Many assume overruns come from expensive finishes – premium paving, decking, or planting. In reality, they usually start earlier: when construction begins before the garden is properly designed.

Gardens are more complex than interiors. They must respond to slope, drainage, soil, sun exposure, and the relationship between the home's floor and surrounding ground. When these factors aren't planned, problems only appear mid-construction, and corrections are costly.

Typical outcomes:

- Water collecting near patios or foundations
- Incorrect or uncomfortable step heights
- Irrigation or lighting needing a rework
- Underestimated hardscape quantities
- Mid-project changes and rushed decisions

These are not quality problems; they are planning problems, and they are largely preventable.

The ground around the home matters

When a house is built, architectural drawings resolve levels and structure before construction begins. Landscaping, however, is often treated as a finishing touch.

This is where many long-term issues originate.

The ground around a home is not decorative; it controls how water moves across the property. A patio level set

LUXURY LANDSCAPES
THOUGHTFULLY DESIGNED

slightly too high can direct rain towards sliding doors. A pathway installed without considering natural slope can trap water against walls. A deck built without understanding soil conditions can shift over time.

Homeowners often assume that these are contractor mistakes. More often, they are missing design decisions.

Why gardens require planning

An interior renovation happens in a controlled environment. A garden exists within a changing system.

Soil expands and contracts. Rainfall varies seasonally. Sun angles shift throughout the year. Even neighbouring properties influence drainage patterns. Landscaping therefore becomes less about decoration and more about coordination between architecture, ground levels, and water movement.

Before installation begins, certain questions should already be answered:

- Where will stormwater naturally flow?
- What is the safe finished level relative to the house?

- How will roof run-off disperse?
- Which areas should drain and which should absorb?
- Which materials suit the site long-term?
- Without resolving these queries first, construction decisions become reactive rather than intentional.

Design as financial protection

A landscape concept design is not merely aesthetic. It functions as a financial control system for the project.

A proper design coordinates levels, drainage, circulation, and material relationships before construction begins. This provides three protections:

- Cost protection – fewer changes during construction
- Structural protection – reduced moisture and settlement problems
- Property value protection – a landscape that enhances the architecture

When design comes first, the contractor builds with clarity. When construction comes first, the site dictates expensive decisions.

A final thought

A landscape is the only part of a property that interacts directly with both the house and nature. It manages water, guides movement, frames views, and shapes how the home is experienced daily.

When properly planned, a garden does more than improve appearance; it protects the home.

ST PETER'S COLLEGE

Opens Admissions for 2027 and 2028

For Waterfall City Estate families, education is more than a decision; it is an investment in legacy, opportunity, and the future of those who matter most.

That is why many discerning parents seek a school that offers not only academic excellence, but strong values, individual attention, and an environment where children are inspired to thrive. St Peter's College continues to be that choice.

Admissions for the 2027 and 2028 academic years are open, inviting prospective families to discover one of South Africa's most respected co-educational independent schools.

Situated within convenient reach of Waterfall City, in the established suburb of Sunninghill, St Peter's College offers the rare balance of outstanding academic achievement and genuine pastoral care. Since opening its doors in 1998, the College has earned a reputation for developing confident, capable, and grounded young people who are ready to lead with purpose.

At the heart of the St Peter's College experience is a commitment to individual growth.

Every learner is known, supported, and challenged to realise their full potential. Dedicated educators create classrooms where curiosity is encouraged, discipline is valued, and excellence becomes a natural standard. Through the Independent Examinations Board (IEB) curriculum, the College consistently achieves exceptional matric results, including a long-standing 100% pass rate.

Yet families are equally drawn to what happens beyond the classroom.

ST PETER'S COLLEGE

Its motto, In Futurum Fortiter - Bravely into the Future; captures the spirit of a school preparing young people for lives of meaning and success.

Whether in sport, music, drama, debating, leadership, or community outreach, learners are given every opportunity to discover their talents and build confidence. They leave school not only with strong academic results, but with character, resilience, and the ability to thrive in any environment.

For many parents, peace of mind matters just as much as performance. St Peter's College offers a warm, values-driven culture where children feel safe, supported, and inspired each day. It is a community where lasting friendships are formed, where teachers truly care, and where every child is encouraged to grow into the best version of themselves.

As admissions for 2027 and 2028 open, families are encouraged to apply early. Because the right school does more than educate a child. It shapes confidence, builds character, and lays the foundation for an exceptional future.

WHY KIDS NEED BOREDOM

even if it drives parents mad

By Nicola Killops

In a community like Waterfall City, where children have access to sports facilities, cycling paths, swimming pools, extra-murals and endless digital entertainment, boredom can feel unnecessary. We live in an environment designed to offer stimulation. When a child announces boredom, the instinct is to fix it quickly.

Suggest something.
Organise a playdate.
Hand over a device.

But boredom is not a problem. It is a developmental tool.

Unstructured time builds creative thinking

When children are not being directed or entertained, their brains shift into a reflective state. This is where imagination expands. It is where ideas connect and original thinking begins.

In structured activities, the rules are clear. In boredom, the rules must be created.

That shift matters. It encourages children to invent games, build worlds, design projects and follow curiosity. It strengthens creativity in a way that scheduled activities cannot replicate.

In an estate environment filled with opportunity, children still need time that is undefined.

Boredom teaches initiative

When everything is organised for a child, they never need to decide what comes next. Boredom forces that decision.

What should I do?
What could I create?
What interests me right now?

In answering those questions, children practise planning, organising and problem-solving.

They gather materials. They start and abandon ideas. They negotiate with siblings. They learn to manage time without constant instruction.

These are executive functional skills. They are foundational for academic success and independence later in life.

Learning to tolerate discomfort

Boredom is mildly uncomfortable. That discomfort is useful.

When there is no immediate stimulation, children must tolerate restlessness. They must wait. They must sit with the feeling of not knowing what to do.

In a world built around instant access and quick distraction, the ability to endure small amounts of discomfort builds resilience. It supports attention span. It reduces reliance on constant entertainment. It strengthens emotional regulation.

A child who can manage boredom can manage frustration more effectively too.

Independence builds confidence

There is also quiet confidence that grows when children solve boredom themselves.

When a child realises they can generate interest without help, they begin to trust their own thinking. That confidence transfers into schoolwork, social situations and creative tasks.

In estates where children often have rich schedules and abundant options, the goal is not fewer opportunities. It is space between them.

What boredom is not

This is not about neglect. It is not about removing stimulation or ignoring a child for long stretches. Persistent isolation is different from healthy unstructured times.

We are talking about ordinary boredom. A quiet afternoon. A slow school holiday morning. A weekend without a packed timetable.

Short periods of unstructured time are not harmful. They are productive.

Practical ways to allow it

If you want to experiment with giving boredom more space, start small.

Create a simple materials drawer or box with open-ended items. Paper, cardboard, art supplies, building blocks, garden tools, old magazines. Avoid items with instructions. Let imagination lead.

When your child says they are bored, pause before solving it. Ask what ideas they have. Give them time to think.

Avoid defaulting immediately to screens. Technology has its place, but instant entertainment removes the opportunity for self-directed problem-solving.

Make use of the estate itself. Encourage wandering in the garden, cycling, building forts, sketching under a tree or inventing games in shared green spaces. Safe environments are ideal for unstructured exploration.

A small shift in perspective

In high-performing communities, it is easy to equate busy with productivity. Yet constant activity does not automatically build independence.

Boredom does something quieter and more powerful. It teaches children how to generate interest, tolerate discomfort and trust their own ideas.

The next time you hear "I'm bored," resist the urge to rush in.

Give it a moment.

What looks like nothing happening may be the start of something important.

Ivory Tree Game Lodge

A classic Pilanesberg retreat, Ivory Tree Game Lodge combines sweeping valley views with family-friendly facilities. With a large swimming pool, spa, and versatile conference spaces, it's ideal for couples, families, and groups seeking a comfortable bush escape close to Johannesburg. Located within a Big Five reserve, the lodge offers daily game drives alongside relaxing wellness experiences.

Planning your next holiday is the perfect opportunity to take a break, reconnect with nature, and enjoy some well-deserved downtime. If you're looking for an easy escape without the hassle of long travel, why not visit one of these beautiful bush lodges? Just a short drive or flight from home, these destinations offer unforgettable wildlife experiences, fresh air, and plenty of fun for kids and the whole family.

South Africans are truly privileged to have some of the world's most spectacular bushveld right on their doorstep. From the malaria-free Pilanesberg to private concessions bordering the Kruger National Park and the untamed beauty of Makalali, each lodge offers a unique way to enjoy the bush. Whether it's early morning game drives, relaxed afternoons by the pool, or sundowners overlooking vast landscapes, these lodges deliver both adventure and tranquillity.

Each property caters to different travel styles – from family-friendly comfort to intimate tented luxury, community-rooted stays, and full-service lodges ideal for groups or conferences.

Shepherd's Tree Game Lodge

Set within its own private concession in Pilanesberg, Shepherd's Tree Game Lodge offers a more secluded and exclusive experience. Guests can enjoy expansive bush views, elegant suites, and a tranquil spa. It's a perfect choice for those looking for privacy, luxury, and peaceful moments between game drives.

Nkuhlu Tented Camp

For a more authentic safari feel, Nkuhlu Tented Camp provides an unfenced, riverside experience in Kruger National Park. Raised canvas suites overlook the Sabie River, offering a close connection to nature without sacrificing comfort. Ideal for adults or families with older teens, this camp is perfect for those seeking a true bush immersion.

Nkambeni Tented Camp

Located on the western boundary of the Kruger National Park, Nkambeni Tented Camp began as a community initiative and has grown into a welcoming Big Five destination. With spacious tents on private decks, guided drives within a private concession, and a strong focus on local employment, it's a meaningful and memorable safari choice.

Buffalo Rock Safari Camp

Situated within the Nkambeni concession, Buffalo Rock Safari Camp offers an intimate and luxurious unfenced experience. Wildlife roams freely through the camp, creating a thrilling yet peaceful atmosphere. Guided drives and bush walks make the most of the area's rich game density.

Skukuza Safari Lodge

Located in the heart of Skukuza Rest Camp, Skukuza Safari Lodge is ideal for travellers seeking convenience and accessibility. With 128 rooms and family-friendly facilities, it serves as a gateway to Kruger's incredible biodiversity, offering easy access to main routes, expert guides, and comfortable amenities.

Makalali Game Lodge

Makalali Game Lodge offers two distinct experiences: the Main Lodge, with its classic bush luxury, and the River Lodge, featuring private suites along the Makhutswi River. Set within a vast private reserve west of Kruger, both lodges provide high-end accommodation, secluded settings, and exceptional game viewing across 26,000 hectares. It's perfect for guests wanting a more exclusive, boutique safari experience.

There's no need to travel far to create lasting memories. Whether you're planning a family getaway, a romantic retreat, or a peaceful break in nature, these bush lodges offer something for everyone. Now, they travel to the breathtaking shores of Lake Como, Italy, to reunite for the first time since that fateful evening.

The Summer I Turned Pretty

By Jenny Han

The Summer I Turned Pretty is now a major TV series on Amazon Prime! From the author of Netflix's smash-hit movie To All The Boys I've Loved Before, this is the perfect funny summer romance for fans of The Kissing Booth and Holly Bourne.

One girl. Two boys. And the summer that changed everything. Every year Isabel spends a perfect summer at her favourite place in the world – the Fisher family's beach house. It has everything a girl could want: a swimming pool, a private stretch of sandy beach and two (very cute) boys: Unavailable, aloof Conrad – who she's been in love with forever. Friendly, relaxed Jeremiah – the only one who's ever really paid her any attention. But this year something is different. This year, the boys seem to really notice Isabel for the first time. It's going to be an amazing summer – and one she'll never forget . . .

Unleashed

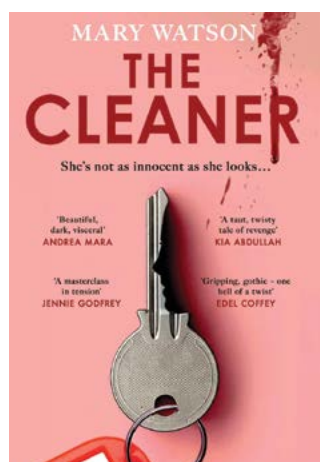

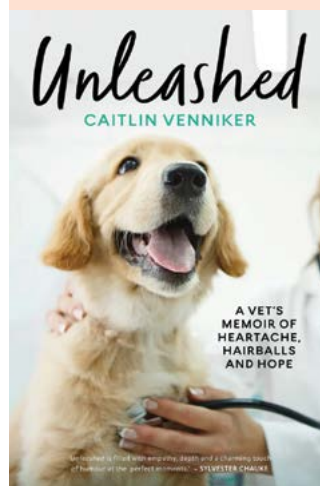

By Caitlin Venniker

Unleashed is the hilarious, intensely honest memoir of Caitlin Venniker's journey from Onderstepoort, the only veterinary training institution in South Africa, into the heart of private practice, with a few stops in the United Kingdom and Middle East along the way.

It's a story of growing up, juggling owners with high expectations and animals with big opinions, bluffing confidence, quirky colleagues, cows with anger issues and midnight emergencies. It's about navigating the challenges of dating, using coffee as a crutch, finding humour in dark moments, and the immense joy and grief that come with loving animals.

The Cleaner

By Mary Watson

Esmie is supposed to be invisible. Just a cleaner with a foreign accent that no one quite has time to place. Her uniform of leggings and a duster allows her to explore the homes of the wealthy, unseen; an outsider creeping around the edges of privilege.

But as she sweeps through the exclusive Woodlands gated neighbourhood, cleaning is the last thing on her mind. Treading silently over the polished wooden floorboards and cloud-soft carpets, Esmie gathers up the mess of broken marriages, quiet deceptions and careless failures. She tucks away their fragments, keeping them safe. For now.

Because one of the residents took from her the person she loves most. She's not here to clean; she's here for revenge – and she'll get it using the weapons her employers unwittingly handed her along with the keys to their homes: their own secrets...
